

Operations Management-Production and Inventory Management Course

Scope: In this 40-hour instructor-led coaching program, the candidate will receive a comprehensive education, but at a fast pace, concerning operations strategy, operations management, and material flow. It is a “Fast Trak” approach because the redundancy in the two individual courses have been eliminated. When you register for this course, you also have access to the pre-recorded microlearning lessons, which provide a 24/7 availability to the basic concepts.

During this program, the candidate will explore the concept of creating a company strategy and then align that strategy with the operations strategy, which includes the many choices for aligning the operations strategy to the on-going planning and execution of production. This knowledge will allow the candidate to effectively managing the flow of material through the end-to-end supply chain.

This program is an excellent overview of an enterprise resource planning (ERP) manufacturing system and serves as a review course for the Certification in Planning and Inventory Management (CPIM) sponsored by APICS. There are also pre-recorded versions of the material allowing candidates a 24/7 access for refresher study.

Who Should Attend? Industry newcomers, logistics professionals, and those seeking to advance into manufacturing management roles should take this course. Anyone active in daily management of production planning, purchasing, logistics, or operations will bring home proven techniques to eliminate non-value-added activities, reduce costs, shorten cycle times, and improve customer service.
