

Operations Management-Production and Inventory Management Course

Scope: In this 44-hour instructor-led coaching program, the candidate will receive a comprehensive education, but at a fast pace, concerning operations strategy, operations management, and material flow. When you register for this course, you also have access to the pre-recorded microlearning lessons on my web site, which provides a 24/7 availability to these concepts.

During this program, the candidate will explore creating a company strategy and then align that strategy with the operations strategy, which includes the many choices to the on-going planning and execution of production. This knowledge will allow the candidate to effectively managing the flow of material through the company.

This program is an excellent overview of an enterprise resource planning (ERP) manufacturing system and serves as a review course for the APICS Certification in Planning and Inventory Management (CPIM) sponsored by ASCM

Who Should Attend? Industry newcomers, logistics professionals, and those seeking to advance into manufacturing management roles should take this course. Anyone active in daily management of production planning, purchasing, logistics, or operations will obtain proven techniques to eliminate non-value-added activities, reduce costs, shorten cycle times, and improve customer service.
